

Trade with China, vs Alleged Progress of C-19 Virus

The “official” story, which is not challenged here, is that a new Covid virus originated in Wuhan, China and infected people – including those visiting that country on business. Those visitors returned home during February 2020 and took the virus with them.

I've no data on how many such traders there were, but assume that the number was roughly in proportion to the volume of trade being done; and we do have that data for 2017 for the 20 largest trading nations (counting the EU as one.)

In the chart below those trade volumes are shown in green, and the reported deaths from C-19 by mid-April are shown in hundreds, in red.

As can be seen at once, the red bars are not remotely proportional to the green ones; they are all over the map. There is zero correlation.

Strikingly, the only countries with significant reported C-19 deaths are the USA, the EU and Canada. That group aligns almost exactly with membership in NATO.

If this “pandemic” were actually a natural phenomenon, the red and green bars would roughly correlate; the deaths would be somewhat proportional to the number of trade visitors to China bringing the virus home with them.

Conclusion: it is not a natural phenomenon at all. The reports of deaths are lies, fabricated for some political purpose by colluding members of NATO.
